A Message from the CEO...

While 'business as usual' looks a bit different these days, we are open and here to help! I don't think any of us imagined a time where we would be operating drive-thru only and by appointment for our lobbies. We are truly grateful to our members and staff who worked with us through all the changes. Thank you!

We continue to follow CDC and State guidelines to help ensure the safest environment possible. We recently had both of our branch locations professionally sanitized.

While life and business slowly return to normal, we will continue to focus on how we can evolve to meet your needs.

Sincerely,

Heather Fowler

Money Mule Scams

If someone sends you money and asks you to send it to someone else, STOP. You could be what some people call a money mule — someone scammers use to transfer and launder stolen money.

Scammers often ask you to buy gift cards or wire money. They might recruit you through online job ads, prize offers, or dating websites.

Scammers:

Send you a check

Tell you to send some of the money to someone else

When you later find out the check was bad, you could be stuck covering the entire amount of the check, including what you sent. And that might overdraw your account.

HOW TO AVOID A MONEY MULE SCAM:

Never use your own bank account, or open one in your name, to transfer money for an employer.

Never pay to collect a prize or move any money out of your "winnings."

Never send money to an online love interest, even if he or she sends you a check first.

WHAT TO DO if you spot this scam:

Break off contact with the scammers and stop moving money for them.

Tell your bank and the wire transfer or gift card company — right away.

Report it to the Federal Trade Commission at ftc.gov/complaint.

Criminals are good at conning people into helping them move money. Don't do it. You could lose money and get in trouble with the law.
